UBC LAW REVIEW

Join Allard Hall's Student-Run Legal Journal as an Assistant Editor!

Interested in getting involved with the UBC Law Review? Send a resume and cover letter to lawrevubc@gmail.com by Monday, September 21st at 5:00 pm.

We typically have 30 Assistant Editor positions each year, filled primarily by first-year students. Assistant Editors who would like to continue working with the UBC Law Review after their first year are encouraged to apply for board positions in second term.

Why work with the UBC Law Review?

♦ It's an opportunity to work on one of the country's leading legal journals, in operation since 1949 and entirely student-run.
♦ You'll get exposure to leading legal research and the scholarly publishing process.
♦ Your work will give you a crash course in legal citation: an invaluable skill for memos, factums, and papers.
♦ The editorial work you'll be assigned emphasizes attention to detail: a vital skill in legal practice that looks great on your resume.
♦ You'll work on 2–3 assignments per term and know your work load in advance. We coordinate the editorial schedule with the 1L schedule to minimize conflict with your courses—and leave you plenty of time to study for exams.
♦ Your team will be supervised by a 2L or 3L Associate Editor who can be a great resource and even a mentor.
♦ Assistant Editors will get the chance to apply for paid summer positions with the UBC Law Review in the summer after first year, as well as the opportunity to apply to join the Board of Directors in your second and/or third years.

To learn more, join us at our virtual Info Sessions on September 9th or 17th.

PLEASE NOTE: Successful applicants must attend a Law Review Training Session on September 28th from 2:00 pm – 4:00 pm.
